Weekly Money Review

Twenty minutes on Sunday beats twenty hours at tax time.

DATE OF REVIEW _____ WEEK # _____

THE CHECK-IN

- ☐ Got every receipt for this week into one place
  Pile, envelope, or photos on your phone — just make them findable.
- ☐ Logged every expense from this week (use the Expense Log sheet)
  Missing one? Water under the bridge. Log it now anyway.
- ☐ Sent this week's invoices
  No invoice, no income. Slow invoicing is quiet self-underpayment.
- ☐ Noted payments that came in and marked those invoices paid
  Match each payment to an invoice number so nothing drifts.
- ☐ Checked who owes me and nudged anything overdue
  A short, friendly reminder is a normal thing real businesses send.
- ☐ Glanced at the bank balance and wrote it down below
  Not a goal, just a snapshot. Snapshots kill surprises.
- ☐ Put aside a slice of income for taxes (even 10–20% helps)
  Separate account or envelope — future-you says thanks.
- ☐ Looked ahead: anything due to me (or by me) next week?
  Deadlines, renewals, subscriptions, contract dates.
- ☐ One number I'm watching this week is written down below
  Pick exactly one. Attention, not anxiety.
- ☐ Next review is on my calendar (same ritual, on purpose)
  Deciding "when" now is the whole trick.

THIS WEEK AT A GLANCE

SNAPSHOT
Money in this week
Money out this week
Bank balance today
Invoices sent (this week)
Invoices paid (this week)
Still owed to me overall

THE ONE NUMBER I'M WATCHING (AND WHY, IN ONE LINE)

Feedback loop, not report card. Miss a week? Just do the next one.